

ALEXIS OLIN

Alexis Olin

Multidisciplinary Artist · Barcelona

Alexis Olin is a multidisciplinary artist working across painting, illustration, photography, digital media, animation, and textile design. His practice explores the balance between structure and spontaneity, drawing on an interest in visual systems, memory, and emotional expression.

He began his creative career in the early 2000s as editor-in-chief of K9, a Ukrainian comics magazine inspired by Franco-Belgian comics. In 2016, he founded Métrique, an independent streetwear label translating his visual language into clothing, prints, and graphic design.

His current work combines traditional and digital techniques, including acrylic painting, oil pastels, spray paint, photography, and digital illustration. Moving between fine art and commercial projects, he explores different ways of transforming ideas into images, objects, and visual narratives.
